

When Dan Travers is faced with the prospect of losing his job in humiliating circumstances, and possibly going to jail, he makes a desperate choice. A choice that will affect not only his future but will have dire repercussions for all those around him. How did this dedicated surfer and family man find himself in such a dilemma? Why would he contemplate such a wild scheme? Bombings and murders in Bali combine with drug wars on the streets of Sydney to draw Dan ever deeper into the hell he created with a few simple words. Once the choice has been made how can Dan return to a normal life, and who will be made to pay the price for his foolishness? Choices by Jeff Edwards is intriguing and action-packed from page one, and keeps the reader guessing until the very end. Edwards has crafted a fast-paced story featuring credible characters whose paths appear to blur the line between fact and fiction. Humour and pathos are also to be found in the tightly constructed sub-plots. Edwards weaves a compelling story and skilfully draws complex and interesting characters into a recognisable contemporary Australian setting. Look out for and look forward to a sequel to Choices!
