

A rich, powerful and intriguing true story of Langhorn, an African-American man, and Mary, a German-American woman. Both born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, 20 miles from Philadelphia, common working-class folks, inextricably caught in the maelstrom of significant events and issues of the day--slavery, abolition, the Underground Railroad, prejudice, racism and the Civil War. Filled with all the romance, adventure, trials and triumphs of the times, blended with a tale of love and marriage that was condemned by the majority and the inevitable clash between two societies, North and South, that would bring war, death and freedom to the United States.
